Please continue to write your diaries - I've heard lots of you have been working on them! Can you write a springtime poem about the beautiful things we see around us during the spring? You can get some ideas from this website: http://www.brendawilliamspoet.co.uk/Spring.html	Can you purple polish your poem? What could you do to improve it? Have you checked your spellings? Could you use a better adjective?	Can you write a letter to me telling me what you are enjoying the most about being at home and what you miss the most at school? Try to remember how we lay out a letter. I would love to read some of your letters if you are able to email them to me.	Using your choice of 3 common exception words (they were in your work pack that went home) ask someone at home to put the word into a simple sentence for you and say it out loud to you. You then need to write this short sentence down remembering full stops, capital letters and trying your hardest to spell correctly.	Repeat from yesterday. Using your choice of 3 common exception words, ask someone at home to put the word into a simple sentence for you and say it out loud to you. You then need to write this short sentence down remembering full stops, capital letters and trying your hardest to spell correctly.

Can you paint, colour or use materials to create a beautiful sunflower picture? These would look wonderful in our classroom when we go back and will definitely brighten the place up! badger@stjohns-farnham.surrey.sch.uk	Can you think about the things that you are thankful for? Write a list and draw some pictures to go with it. I am thankful for good health, my family and all of the children in Badgers class!	See purple mash for this week's Science work.	Can you find anything outside that you could make into an instrument? It might be sticks, stones, or any other objects that you can find laying around. I'd love to hear about and see your inventions! You might become a famous inventor after this!	Can you explore outside on your walks or in your gardens any new plants or flowers that you have noticed starting to grow. You can write about them, draw them or take a picture of the new life all around us. Try and find out some information about what you discover.
